700 RUSSIANS BELIEVED DEAD IN SHIP WRECK

ese Island

WOMEN, CHILDREN AMONG MISSING

Survivors From Crowded Vessel Brought Into
Hokkaido

(By Associated Press)
WAKKANAI, Hokkaido, Japan,
Dec. 13.—More than 700 Russians,
including women and children,
were missing today and believed drowned or frozen to death in the wreck of the Russian steamer In-digirka on the treacherous coast of Hokkaido.

The Japanese ship Karafuto Maru arrived here with 395 survivors from the crowded Russian fishing service vessel which went aground in a blizzard yesterday on the east coast of Hokkaido, northeastmost of the main Japanese islands.

Survivors, most of whom were suffering from exposure, said the ship carried 700 fishermen, many accompanied by wives and children,
and a crew of 39.

(The scene of the wreck is on route between fishing stations on the Kamchatka peninsula and Vladivostok.)

Reports received in Tokyo said 67 were known to have died on the Indigirka.

Survivors said the Indigirka sent out one SOS before huge waves smashed her radio room. Because of the blinding snow she was unable to give her position accurately.

The storm held possible rescue
ships in port throughout yesterday.

The survivors said they did not know the fate of their missing comrades.

The Indigirka was a ship of only 260 tons, with vessels plying between the northern fishing ports
and Vladivostok often carry large passenger lists.

European Power Politics Attacked In Irwin's Talk

Foreign Affairs Interpreter Condemns Policies of
Allies As Wholeheartedly As Those of Foes

Declaring "Americans must know
these things, if we are to form any judgment" about the state of the world today, Spencer Irwin, foreign affairs columnist for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, told the story behind
events which led to a second world war, in a talk at the public library
last night.

Irwin, associate editor of the Cleveland paper and widely known for his interpretation and comment on foreign developments, was introduced to a large audience by Mrs. L. D. Cessa, president of the Travelers club which sponsored the speaker's second appearance here.

The game of power politics which
all of Europe's major powers have played in recent years was pictured by Irwin who condemned the policies of England and France as
"wholeheartedly as those of Germany, Italy and Russia. Like most Americans he said, "I do not like deceit, treachery and treason to one's allies, whether it is done by a man with a cookie duster
moustache or under an umbrella."

Tracing history from 1934 Tracing Europe's complex history from 1934, "the year of assassinations," Irwin outlined important events in that year leading up to the present war in Europe. "Five events occurring five years ago
marked the beginning of the development of the policies which have brought Europe to war."

ZEPPELIN IN GERMANY IDLE

War Shatters, Temporarily At Least, Dreams
of Dr. Eckener

(By Associated Press)
FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany,
Dec. 13.—The dream of Dr. Hugo Eckener, famed master of Zeppelins, the re-establishment of a regular,
two-way airship line between the United States and Germany, has been shattered by the European war, temporarily, at least.

The "LZ 130," successor to the ill-fated Hindenburg, is all dressed up but has no place to go and no gas with which to go.

Besides, construction work on the "LZ 131," intended as a sister ship to the "LZ 130," has ceased.

Eckener's first great disappointment came when Harold G. Ickes, United States secretary of the interior, vetoed the sale of helium gas to the Zeppelin company.

The failure to obtain helium never could be used for military purposes and that his ships would not aid warfare. Then valuable deposits of helium gas along the German-Netherlands frontier were reported but the war halted exploitation.

Meanwhile Eckener tried to keep his Zeppelin crew in training by ordering a number of practice flights with hydrogen gas. These took place to the old skipper's complete satisfaction in the autumn of 1938 and the spring of 1939 but now are banned by the air ministry.

So the brand new "LZ 130," which was to be christened "Graf Zeppelin II," remains in the vast hangar at Frankfurt-on-Main.

The failure to obtain helium halted construction work on the "LZ 131." When the war came work was stopped altogether.

ion hall in Lisbon.

president, Dr. L. C. Ziegler of Salem; secretary-treasurer, Dr. Paul Conrad, Leetonia.

Dr. Paul Beaver of Leetonia was chosen delegate to the state medical convention and John Fraser of East Liverpool, alternate.

Last night's program featured a talk on "Uretal Stricture," by Dr.
E. W. Miskall of East Liverpool, with a discussion led by Dr. E. G.
Kuhlman of Wellsville.

LEAGUE REPORT CONDEMNES RUSS IN FINNISH WAR

Document Contains Implied Demand for Soviet Expulsion

ARGENTINA MAY
RESIGN, REPORT

Rumors of Western Hemisphere Battle Are
Unconfirmed

(By Associated Press)
Russia today was condemned as an aggressor for her invasion of Finland by a League of Nations
sub-committee report which contained an implied demand for expulsion of Russia from the league.

An invitation for league members to give Finland all possible help and a suggestion that non-member nations such as the United States be asked to help also were contained in the report which went to a 13-nation committee before submission to the league assembly and council.

Argentina led the way toward expulsion by threatening to resign
if the Soviet Union, which refused mediation of the Russian-
Finnish war, stays in the league.

There were unconfirmed reports
meanwhile of a naval engagement bringing Europe's war to the western hemisphere.

British naval authorities in Buenos Aires said they were investigating reports that the British cruiser Achilles had been sunk
in a battle with the German pocket
battleship Admiral Scheer off Uruguay but had obtained no direct information.

In Washington, United States
Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, returning from his Brussels post for consultations, declared "nothing short of a miracle can prevent the European war from being a long
and bitter one."

Turning down the mediation offer, Russia reiterated her contention that her relations are peaceful with the Communist-inspired Finnish "people's" government set up near the Finnish frontier soon after war started, Moscow does not recognize the Helsinki government.

A break in diplomatic relations between Russia and the British-French allies seemed a possible sequel if Russia is ousted from the league.

Russia reported her troops had penetrated 45 miles into central Finland from the eastern frontier.

The bitterness of the fighting
was indicated by reports that Leningrad churches, converted into military hospitals, were receiving a steady stream of Red army casualties from the Finnish fronts.

The Finnish telegraph agency,
without giving the source of its information, declared was massing 1,500,000 men for a smashing offensive against the Finns, mainly on the Karelian isthmus where the invaders have been held off since the war started Nov. 30.

175 paroles and eight conditional releases.

lease dates by counties, included:

sley Lumkin, breaking and entering railroad car, March 1, to go to North Carolina; John C. Goler, grand larceny, Feb. 1; James Pounders, breaking and entering, Feb. 1.

stealing, Feb. 1; John Janis, breaking and entering, April 1.

British Warships Sink a Nazi U-Boat

One of the most dramatic of the current war, this photograph shows the sinking of a German submarine by two British destroyers. The U-boat, bracketed by the warships, was forced to the surface by a depth bomb. After her crew members escaped, the sub was shelled and sent to the bottom. Note the Nazi sailor to left of conning tower and two others (in circle) swimming to the destroyer in left foreground. Photo flashed by radio from London to New York.

NEGRO CHURCHES TO BE COMBINED

St. John's Will Be Abandoned On Recommendation of Conference

An agreement between officials of the St. John A. M. E. and the Mt.
Zion A. M. E. churches resulted today in the closing of the St. John church, located at 949 East Third st.

The decision to close the church
was made Tuesday at a meeting of Rev. T. W. Chrysler of Youngstown, representative of the St. John A. M. E., and Rev. Ira Lavigne, pastor of the Mt. Zion A.
M. E.

Property of the St. John church was turned over to Rev. Lavigne, who plans to use some of the furnishings in the Mt. Zion church.

Closing of the St. John church and consolidation of the two Negro religious organizations has been advocated for some time, but definite action was delayed until the St.
John church's district conference
approved the move.

While it was an African Methodist Episcopal church, the St.
John A. M. E. was of a different denomination than the Mt. Zion
A. M. E.

Rev. Chrysler, who was appointed by the district conference to act as representative of the St. John's church in negotiations for its dissolution, has urged all members of the closed church to join the
Mt. Zion congregation.

Regular services have not been held in the St. John church for more than a year, and some of the old members have already transferred their affiliation. Rev. Chrysler was empowered by his district conference to urge all other old members to join the Mt. Zion A. M. E.

Organized during the days of great unrest immediately preceding the Civil war, the St. John church was linked closely with the "underground railway" in its early years.

First African Methodists were largely members of bands escaping bondsmen. Quakers and others friendly to the cause of liberty for Africans in America made Salem a safe way-station on the "underground railway." Many of these refugees decided to remain in Salem
and out of this group grew the St.
John A. M. E. church.

Among the pioneer trustees of the church were Fred Thompson, Benjamin Auburn, Nicholas Berry and others. The names of George Wiley and George Geers were also connected with early activities of the church.

The first church building was located on W. Second st., where the Salvation Army barracks now stand.
Later the church moved to a building on E. Fourth st. at the corner of N. Rose ave. In 1887, the church moved to the present location on E.
Third st.

The familiar Salvation Army
kettles have again made their appearance on downtown Salem streets.

"Keep the pot boiling with a generous contribution," is the plea of Captain Raymond Raines of the local chapter.

The money will be used to buy food, clothing and toys for deserving families and their children.
Approximately 25 families will be aided by the Salvation Army here on Christmas day. Needy single men will be given a "feed" at the Army barracks on Christmas.

The organization will hold its annual Christmas program on Wednesday, Dec. 27.

$25,000 Suit Names Traction Company

LISBON, Dec. 13.—The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company was named defendant in a $25,000 damage action filed in common pleas court here Tuesday by Leonard Barlow of East Liverpool.

Barlow alleges negligence on the part of the defendant company in the operation of one of their cars in the early morning of Dec. 15, 1937. The plaintiff states he boarded the street car on the St. Clair avenue extension shortly before 6
a. m. He said that when the car went down Brawshaw avenue the rails were slippery and icy and there was insufficient sand for the wheels to secure traction. It is also claimed that the brakes failed to operate and that as the car attempted to make the turn into Walnut at it jumped the tracks and overturned in a vacant lot.

Barlow claims he was thrown about in the car and seriously injured, impairing his earning power, and that he suffered loss of wages and incurred medical expenses.

(By Associated Press)
WAKKANAI, Hokkaido, Japan,
Dec. 13.—More than 700 Russians,
including women and children,
were missing today and believed
drowned or frozen to death in the wreck of the Russian steamer Indigirka on the treacherous coast of Hokkaido.

The Japanese ship Karafuto Maru arrived here with 395 survivors from the crowded Russian fishing service vessel which went aground in a blizzard yesterday on the east coast of Hokkaido, northernmost of the main Japanese islands.

Survivors, most of whom were
suffering from exposure, said the
ship carried 700 fishermen, many
accompanied by wives and children,
and a crew of 39.

(The scene of the wreck is on
route between fishing stations on the Kamchatka peninsula and Vladivostok.)

Reports received in Tokyo said 87 were known to have died on the Indigirka.)

Survivors said the Indigirka sent
out one SOS before huge waves
smashed her radio room. Because of the blinding snow she was unable to give her position accurately.

The storm held possible rescue
ships in port throughout yesterday.
The survivors said they did not
know the fate of their missing
comrades.

The Indigirka was a ship of only 2,600 tons, but vessels plying between the northern fishing ports
and Vladivostok often carry large
passenger lists.

European Power Politics
Attacked In Irwin's Talk

Foreign Affairs Interpreter Condemns Policies of
Allies As Wholeheartedly As Those of Foes

Declaring "Americans must know
these things, if we are to form any
judgment" about the state of the world today, Spencer Irwin, foreign affairs columnist for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, told the story behind
events which led to a second world
war, in a talk at the public library
last night.

Irwin, associate editor of the Cleveland paper and widely known
for his interpretation and comment
on foreign developments, was introduced to a large audience by
Mrs. L. D. Cessa, president of the Travelers club which sponsored the speaker's second appearance here.

The game of power politics which
all of Europe's major powers have
played in recent years was pictured
by Irwin who condemned the
policies of England and France as
wholeheartedly as those of Germany, Italy and Russia. Like most Americans he said, "I do not like
deceit, treachery and treason to
one's allies, whether it is done by
a man with a cookie duster
moustache or under an umbrella."

Tracing Europe's complex history from 1934, "the year of assassinations", Irwin outlined important events in that year leading up to the present war in Europe. "Five
events occurring five years ago
marked the beginning of the development of the policies which
have brought Europe to war."

Shows Italy's Aims
Fourth, the assassination in Marseilles on Oct. 9 of King Alexandre of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Louis Bartou of France by a so-called group of Yugoslavs, who had obtained their arms, training and found asylum in Hungary and Italy.

That event showed that Italy would go to any ends to further her influence in the Balkans, and marked the first public appearance of an English policy, begun by Sir Neville Henderson, which says, in effect, "the only solution to the problem is a middle Europe under German domination." Henderson warned that such a "solution" was coming—four years before the peace of Munich decided the fate of Czechoslovakia.

Henderson put into words the policy of Britain, which, ostensibly advancing the cause of democracies, was playing power politics and entering into secret negotiations with Germany, prepared to sacrifice anything, so long as it was not herself, to attain certain considerations.

The fifth event of 1934, important to the development of today's European war, was the assassination on Dec. 1 in Moscow of the Russian political bureau man, Kierov, whose death gave Stalin an excuse to fix his grip on Russia as he had never before been able to,
to begin his career of "Napoleon to Lenin's Robespierre". From that time Russia's policy changed. Instead of a program of terror directed against the enemies of the working class, it became a program of terror directed against the working class. The new program led to the purges in Russia, laying the groundwork of a policy which was climaxed in the attack on Finland 11 days ago.

Europe, Irwin asserted, went through the motion of doing something about the totalitarian states' policies through the League of Nations, but they were only motions.
Machinery was there to do something, but its failure to work was "the fault of the men who refused to make it work."

Japan's invasion of Manchuria in 1931 gave the League its first major test, its first case involving great powers. Investigation of the invasion by the league led to the condemnation of Japan as an aggressor and Japan's resignation from the league, but nothing more.
Britain laid the league's failure to cooperate in stopping Japanese aggression. Her prime minister, Sir John Simon, told the countries of Europe that this country had no intention of aiding others in stopping Japan, at the time Henry L.

LEAGUE REPORT
CONDEMNS RUSS
IN FINNISH WAR

Document Contains Implied Demand for Soviet Expulsion

Rumors of Western Hemisphere Battle Are
Unconfirmed

(By Associated Press)
Russia today was condemned as
an aggressor for her invasion of Finland by a League of Nations
sub-committee report which contained an implied demand for expulsion of Russia from the league.

An invitation for league members to give Finland all possible
help and a suggestion that non-
member nations such as the United States be asked to help also were
contained in the report which went
to a 13-nation committee before
submission to the league assembly
and council.

Argentina led the way toward
expulsion by threatening to resign
if the Soviet Union, which refused mediation of the Russian-
Finnish war, stays in the league.

There were unconfirmed reports
meanwhile of a naval engagement
bringing Europe's war to the western hemisphere.

British naval authorities in Buenos Aires said they were investigating reports that the British cruiser Achilles had been sunk
in a battle with the German pocket
battleship Admiral Scheer off Uruguay but had obtained no direct information.

In Washington, United States
Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, returning from his Brussels post for
consultations, declared "nothing
short of a miracle can prevent the European war from being a long
and bitter one."

Turning down the mediation offer, Russia reiterated her contention that her relations are peaceful with the Communist-inspired Finnish "people's" government set up near the Finnish frontier soon
after war started, Moscow does not recognize the Helsinki government.

A break in diplomatic relations between Russia and the British French allies seemed a possible
sequel if Russia is ousted from the league.

Russia reported her troops had
penetrated 45 miles into central Finland from the eastern frontier.

The bitterness of the fighting
was indicated by reports that Leningrad churches, converted into
military hospitals, were receiving a
steady stream of Red army casualties from the Finnish fronts.

The Finnish telegraph agency,
without giving the source of its
information, declared was massing 1,500,000 men for a smashing offensive against the Finns, mainly on the Karelian Isthmus where the in-vadars have been held off since the war started Nov. 30.

jamin Auhorn, Nicholas Berry and others. The names of George Wiley
and George Geers were also connected with early activities of the

British Warships Sink a Nazi U-Boat

One of the most dramatic of the current war, this photograph shows the sinking of a German submarine by two British destroyers. The U-boat, bracketed by the warships, was forced to the surface by a depth bomb. After her crew members escaped, the sub was shelled and sent to the bottom. Note the Nazi sailor to left of conning tower and two others (in circle) swimming to the destroyer in left foreground. Photo flashed by radio from London to New York.

NEGRO CHURCHES TO BE COMBINED

St. John's Will Be Abandoned On Recommendation of Conference

An agreement between officials of
the St. John A. M. E. and the Mt.
Zion A. M. E. churches resulted today in the closing of the St. John church, located at 949 East Third
st.

The decision to close the church
was made Tuesday at a meeting
of Rev. T. W. Chrysler of Youngstown, representative of the St.
John A. M. E., and Rev. Ira Lavigne, pastor of the Mt. Zion A.
M. E.

Property of the St. John church was turned over to Rev. Lavigne,
who plans to use some of the furnishings in the Mt. Zion church.

Closing of the St. John church
and consolidation of the two Negro
religious organizations has been advocated for some time, but definite
action was delayed until the St.
John church's district conference
approved the move.

While it was an African Methodist Episcopal church, the St.
John A. M. E. was of a different denomination than the Mt. Zion
A. M. E.

Rev. Chrysler, who was appointed by the district conference to act
as representative of the St. John's church in negotiations for its dis-
solution, has urged all members
of the closed church to join the
Mt. Zion congregation.

Regular services have not been
held in the St. John church for more than a year, and some of the
old members have already transferred their affiliation. Rev. Chrysler was empowered by his district conference to urge all other old members to join the Mt. Zion A. M. E.

Organized during the days of
great unrest immediately preceding
the Civil war, the St. John church
was linked closely with the "underground railway" in its early years.

First African Methodists were
largely members of bands escaping
bondsmen. Quakers and others
friendly to the cause of liberty for Africans in America made Salem a
safe way-station on the "underground railway." Many of these refugees decided to remain in Salem
and out of this group grew the St.
John A. M. E. church.

Among the pioneer trustees of the
church were Fred Thompson, Benjamin Auhorn, Nicholas Berry and others. The names of George Wiley
and George Geers were also connected with early activities of the

moved to the present location on E.
Third st.

Salvation Army
Kettles Are Out
On Street Again

The familiar Salvation Army
kettles have again made their appearance on downtown Salem
streets.

"Keep the pot boiling with a ge-

Captain Raymond Raines of the local citadel.

The money will be used to buy
food, clothing and toys for deserving families and their children.
Approximately 75 families will be
aided by the Salvation Army here
on Christmas day. Needy single
men will be given a "feed" at the Army barracks on Christmas.

The organization will hold its

$25,000 Suit Names Traction Company

LISBON, Dec. 13.—The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company was named
defendant in a $25,000 damage action filed in common pleas court
here Tuesday by Leonard Barlow of East Liverpool.

Barlow alleges negligence on the part of the defendant company in
the operation of one of their cars
in the early morning of Dec. 15, 1937. The plaintiff states he boarded the street car on the St. Clair avenue extension shortly before 6
a. m. He said that when the car
went down Brawshaw avenue the
rails were slippery and icy and
there was insufficient sand for the wheels to secure traction. It is also
claimed that the brakes failed to
operate and that as the car attempted to make the turn into Walnut st it jumped the tracks and overturned in a vacant lot.

Barlow claims he was thrown
about in the car and seriously injured, impairing his earning power, and that he suffered loss of wages and incurred medical expenses.

PEACE FEELER

Origin of Europe's newest peace feeler is inconsequential. Perhaps it's Italy, which squirms at the prospect of Russian influence in the Balkans unless the Soviets are held inside Asia by concerted European action. Perhaps it's Germany, which sees nothing to be gained from war and a vast deal to be lost. It might be Great Britain, or France, or Sweden, or one of the other neutrals—the Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland.

All have a powerful motive for continuing to explore the possibilities of peace. They see clearly what before was partly concealed, that the only country with anything to gain from war is Russia eager to get ahead with the revolution that will make Europe safe for Stalin-Communism. They have seen red in the easy surrender of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, in the invasion of Finland and preparations to invade Roumania.

There is only one way out—a peace settlement before war. Even Great Britain and France, resolved to destroy Hitlerism as a measure of security, must realize that Stalinism also must be destroyed and probably is the greater of the two evils threatening continental security in the long run. Regardless of the source of the suggestion, peace never looked more attractive than it does now.

NOT A SPORTING PROPOSITION

Most welcome sound isolationists have heard in a long time is Joseph P. Kennedy's advice to his countrymen to stay out of the war.

Whenever an American gets the appointment to the Court of St. James's, his countrymen begin to wonder if their English cousins are going to win him over to their way of thinking.

In the case of Walter Hines Page, a confirmed Anglophile long before he became United States ambassador to Great Britain under President Wilson, their suspicions were brought to a painful climax by disclosure of a course of diplomacy that embarrassed even Mr. Wilson in his attempts to maintain neutrality. Ambassador Page, convinced that the United States belonged with the Allies, did everything in his power to further that purpose long before either his government or his people were committed to such a policy.

Ambassador Kennedy, home for the holidays, says American sporting spirit is offended by persecution of the weak abroad, but "this is not our fight." The public should demand a specific answer to the question "Why?" when anybody advocates our entering the war. These are reassuring thoughts from Mr. Kennedy at this time. His countrymen hope they reflect the viewpoint of the entire Roosevelt administration.

NO CROSSED WIRES

Refusal to shade a point of legality for wire tapping, a convenient way to obtain evidence for criminal prosecution, is the supreme court's way of proving that civil rights are in a healthy condition.

In a case that entails use of evidence obtained illegally—i. e., by wire tapping—the illegal method by which the evidence was obtained is more important than the evidence. In other words, a citizen cannot be convicted on illegal evidence, even though the evidence would clinch his conviction, if it were legal.

When it is considered that this ruling is made in a case prepared by the government itself against persons charged with smuggling alcohol, the court's solicitation for civil rights is more impressive. Its opinion, in effect, is that "broad considerations of morality and public well being" are infinitely more important than obtaining a conviction in court.

While expediency seems to provide an excuse for wire tapping to obtain evidence against certain kinds of criminals, if the excuse be recognized then wire tapping is thrown open to general use. The ultimate effect of that would be to create tolerance for all kinds of invasions of privacy for all purposes.

FORK TO PITCHFORK

Department of agriculture gives an interesting reason for renewed interest in processing taxes. Prospective increases in army and navy expenditures, it says, threaten the farm program's dependency on the general revenue fund. Congress appropriated $1,194,498,000 for the agriculture department last session, including more than three quarters of a billion for payments to farmers. When President Roosevelt criticized it for not meeting an extra budgetary boost of $225,000,000 in parity payments with new taxes, congress looked the other way.

Processing taxes weren't popular, and they were the only visible answer. But that was last August. In September war started abroad, and the United States began to talk about extra billions for national defense. Processing taxes still aren't popular—they were tried under AAA—but they may become inevitable. Payments to farmers, whether the farmers like it or not, aren't a prior claim on general revenue when national defense is at stake.

Perhaps what processing taxes need is a new name, something like fork to pitchfork payments—fork over the money so the farmers can keep pitching. It's just a suggestion.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, December 14.

A very lively day, but one calling for much discretion and discrimination, is forecast by the lunar aspects. There is a menace of opposition, possibly from higher-ups and probably born of enmity, jealousy and deceit. With prudent handling of such matters, there are signs of progress, promotion and the friendship of those of prestige and influence. These may be cultivated with enhanced good fellowship resulting. Social factors contribute to a happy and fortunate day.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to a lively, happy and productive year, with the friendly cooperation of those in high places. However, there is a menace of deceit that may threaten your credit and friendships, unless such are safeguarded by vigilance and prudence.

A child born on this day may be versatile and ambitious, possessing many happy qualities for a successful life. It might have deep religious convictions, being thoughtful, prudent and magnanimous.

ASK SPECIAL SESSION

COLUMBUS, Dec. 13.—The Congress of Industrial Organizations today joined officials of Ohio's large cities in efforts to force Gov. John W. Bricker to call a special session of the legislature to provide additional funds for poor relief.

Governor Bricker has refused to call the general assembly on grounds that municipalities failed to exhaust all means of obtaining money locally.

The CIO announced a plan to contact members of the legislature in a campaign to work up sentiment in favor of a special session early next year. The labor group also sought the support of the state's ministers in the movement.

Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland told a special senate committee on taxation yesterday that city's immediate relief problem had been solved but that another crisis would follow unless the legislature provided new means of raising funds for relief.

Mayor Burton suggested allocation of a half-cent of the 3 cents a gallon gasoline tax to finance municipal governments. Martin S. Dodd, Toledo law director, urged enactment of a consumers tax on all public and private utilities.

Other proposals included adjusting sales tax allocations to give schools less and cities more revenue, lowering percentage requirement for voting special levies from 65 per cent to a bare majority, requiring the state to match local relief funds dollar for dollar without limitation and removing certain levies from the 10-mill tax limitation.

Mayor Floyd Senn of Alliance reported a shortage of money for operation and said he had cut his police and fire department personnel more than half, resulting in a threatened increase of about $40,000 yearly in insurance rates.

Head-Banging Is Nervous Habit, Physician Claims

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What can be done for a little girl, three years old, who has the habit of rhythmically rocking to and fro and banging her head against the back of the chair?

Head-banging of this sort is a very common nervous condition in childhood. It is not due to any organic nervous disease, but is the result of habit. It begins as an expression of general nervous irritation and as the habit grows it becomes more and more difficult to break it. The first attacks usually begin about bedtime. The children

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

seem harm themselves, but it becomes very annoying to parents and onlookers.

Treatment may be in the form of restraint or by the use of a sedative at bedtime. In some children restraint, however, simply makes them worse. When the child is old enough, the best treatment, by all means, is in the form of education to argue him out of it.

DENTURES AND SENSE OF TASTE

Does the wearing of dentures affect the sense of taste?

Artificial teeth are generally believed to affect taste, but the facts are that they do not alter taste appreciably at all. Experiments made by Professor Laird at Philadelphia with different substances—sweet, salt, tart tastes—showed no change. The people on whom the experiment was made were blindfolded and even in great dilutions they were able to tell sweet tastes and even distinguish between orange, pineapple and grapefruit juice.

It must be remembered that taste preferences change with passing years, whether one wears dentures or not, and that there is a numbing due to age, which is probably why people believe that the dentures actually affect their sense of taste.

GLASSES TO REMEDY ASTIGMATISM

I had my eyes tested a while ago and I was told I had astigmatism. I am wearing glasses for this now but I do not think I see quite clearly yet. I am under the impression that the glasses should correct all visual defects and that I should see quite clearly.

Properly-fitted glasses correct astigmatism and make the vision clearer, but they do not always necessarily make sharp vision. Before glasses are fitted the eyes try to correct astigmatism and are able to do so to a certain extent, and they may continue to strain after the glasses are put on, which creates a little blurring. If glasses for astigmatism do not correct the defect completely after being worn for six months, they should be investigated.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Femine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

PEACE FEELER

Origin of Europe's newest peace feeler is inconsequential. Perhaps it's Italy, which squirms at the prospect of Russian influence in the Balkans unless the Soviets are held inside Asia by concerted European action. Perhaps it's Germany, which sees nothing to be gained from war and a vast deal to be lost. It might be Great Britain, or France, or Sweden, or one of the other neutrals—the Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland.

All have a powerful motive for continuing to explore the possibilities of peace. They see clearly what before was partly concealed, that the only country with anything to gain from war is Russia eager to get ahead with the revolution that will make Europe safe for Stalin-Communism. They have seen red in the easy surrender of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, in the invasion of Finland and preparations to invade Roumania.

There is only one way out—a peace settlement before war. Even Great Britain and France, resolved to destroy Hitlerism as a measure of security, must realize that Stalinism also must be destroyed and probably is the greater of the two evils threatening continental security in the long run. Regardless of the source of the suggestion, peace never looked more attractive than it does now.

NOT A SPORTING PROPOSITION

Most welcome sound isolationists have heard in a long time is Joseph P. Kennedy's advice to his countrymen to stay out of the war.

Whenever an American gets the appointment to the court of St. James's, his countrymen begin to wonder if their English cousins are going to win him over to their way of thinking.

In the case of Walter Hines Page, a confirmed Anglophile long before he became United States ambassador to Great Britain under President Wilson, their suspicions were brought to a painful climax by disclosure of a course of diplomacy that embarrassed even Mr. Wilson in his attempts to maintain neutrality. Ambassador Page, convinced that the United States belonged with the Allies, did everything in his power to further that purpose long before either his government or his people were committed to such a policy.

Ambassador Kennedy, home for the holidays, says American sporting spirit is offended by persecution of the weak abroad, but "this is not our fight." The public should demand a specific answer to the question "Why?" when anybody advocates our entering the war. These are reassuring thoughts from Mr. Kennedy at this time. His countrymen hope they reflect the viewpoint of the entire Roosevelt administration.

NO CROSSED WIRES

Refusal to shade a point of legality for wire tapping, a convenient way to obtain evidence for criminal prosecution, is the supreme court's way of proving that civil rights are in a healthy condition.

In a case that entails use of evidence obtained illegally—i. e., by wire tapping—the illegal method by which the evidence was obtained is more important than the evidence. In other words, a citizen cannot be convicted on illegal evidence, even though the evidence would clinch his conviction, if it were legal.

When it is considered that this ruling is made in a case prepared by the government itself against persons charged with smuggling alcohol, the court's solicitation for civil rights is more impressive. Its opinion, in effect, is that "broad considerations of morality and public well being" are infinitely more important than obtaining a conviction in court.

While expediency seems to provide an excuse for wire tapping to obtain evidence against certain kinds of criminals, if the excuse be recognized then wire tapping is thrown open to general use. The ultimate effect of that would be to create tolerance for all kinds of invasions of privacy for all purposes.

FORK TO PITCHFORK

Department of agriculture gives an interesting reason for renewed interest in processing taxes. Prospective increases in army and navy expenditures, it says, threaten the farm program's dependency on the general revenue fund. Congress appropriated $1,194,498,000 for the agriculture department last session, including more than three quarters of a billion for payments to farmers. When President Roosevelt criticized it for not meeting an extra budgetary boost of $225,000,000 in parity payments with new taxes, congress looked the other way.

Processing taxes weren't popular, and they were the only visible answer. But that was last August. In September war started abroad, and the United States began to talk about extra billions for national defense. Processing taxes still aren't popular—they were tried under AAA—but they may become inevitable. Payments to farmers, whether the farmers like it or not, aren't a prior claim on general revenue when national defense is at stake.

Perhaps what processing taxes need is a new name, something like fork to pitchfork payments—fork over the money so the farmers can keep pitching. It's just a suggestion.

SYNOPSIS

Moira Carewe met handsome, well-mannered Tarleton Griggs during the era of prohibition, jazz and the "Black Bottom." The son of a rich man, Tarry lived recklessly only for today. It was that spirit which Moira loved. During Christmas vacation from boarding school, Moira stayed at a modest hotel, in New York, with her father who was doing research work for the Museum of Natural History. To be near her, Tarry just came out of town, even though he knew the old man'll raise the roof. Then followed a merry round of the night clubs and dances. For Moira, their last night together is blighted by the news that Tarry is leaving for Palm Beach at his father's suggestion. Lady Caren Kilmory is there, and it is common gossip that the well-made, socially ambitious Joseph Griggs would welcome a match between her and his son. That summer, Tarry did not go back to Madison. Instead he toured Europe with his father. Moira was devastated. Now and then she'd get a card from him but that was all. However, the society columns told her plenty. There she saw pictures of Tarry and Lady Caren in the fashionable spot or another. Moira did not see Tarry again until Christmas and then just once. Griggs gave a party to celebrate Tarry's coming of age. Moira is in the crowd and Tarry showers her with attention, ignoring Lady Caren. It is a shock therefore, when at supper Mr. Griggs announces his son's engagement to Lady Caren.

CHAPTER IV

Moira wanted to put worlds between herself and Tarry now. One didn't die of a broken heart, these days—or told one's love away to a lavender. As Aunt Melinda would have expressed it, she wanted to be the center of the world in Aunt Melinda's eyes as she followed her constantly. "You don't eat enough, darling! You're far too thin!" Did the older woman suspect? "I crammed too hard over those party finals at school." Auntie, in her old-fashionedness, was all against mental fatigue for women. "I can't think why you want to—have a career! You're so pretty, Moira! You'll be getting married. Till then, why don't you stay home with your father and enjoy yourself?" "Our conceptions of enjoyment are probably quite different. I want to be something. I want to achieve." "You will. There's surely no greater achievement for a woman than a home of her own, and a husband, and babies," said Aunt Melinda, with a sigh for her own domestic failure. With Tarry's forthcoming marriage in her mind, Moira was ruminating. Deepening the wound unthinkingly, auntie proceeded: "I always thought that young Griggs had a hank for you, darling!" "Nonsense! We've just been good friends and on." When a school friend invited her to Cape Cod for August, Moira jumped at it.

She met a young couple from Boston there, who had two tiny girls. The babies took a fancy to Moira, as did the parents, and wanted a job away from home. They asked her to come and spend the winter with them, teach the babies, and they would see to it that she had enough free time to attend certain university classes. If it weren't for the ache about Tarry, she would have been happy in Boston, that fall. As it was, she did achieve a kind of tranquility. Christmas drew near. "Surely you'll at least spend these holidays with your father and me," Aunt Melinda plaintively wrote her. So, in bitter-sweet longing, three days before Christmas Moira went home to learn that Tarry would be married to his Lady Caren in the little church that lay close to the gates of his home, on the world's greatest anniversary. They were all invited. Aunt Melinda had already got herself a new dress. On the morning of the day before Christmas, there was to be a meet of the hounds at Tourney park, and a Hunt Breakfast. Tarry himself phoned Moira to be sure to appear. He sounded less exuberant, more serious, as befitted a young man about to join the ranks of the benedictines.

Moira promised she would come. The splendid mansion that sunny morning, looked like the backdrop to an exquisite motion picture scene. The red coats of the horsemen. Handsome women on sleek thoroughbreds. Hounds straining at the leash. Uniformed servants with the stirrup-cup. A kaleidoscope of color splashing against the velvety green lawns. In her severely tailored habit and top hat—she didn't ride astride—and with unworldly roseness of her cheeks, Lady Caren was at her best. Everyone rode up to speak to her, to congratulate her. It was a sort of rehearsal of tomorrow! For years afterwards, that scene was to be imprinted on Moira's brain. She rode up to Lady Caren herself, held out her hand, and said: "I hope you'll be awfully happy. I know you'll be awfully happy!" "You're sure?" The bride-to-be looked wistfully at the younger, prettier girl. "It's rather generous of you to say that, isn't it?" Moira flushed hotly. "Why shouldn't I say it?" "Oh, nothing. You've known him so much longer than I have. That's all I mean."

They were interrupted by others, then, and Moira was glad of it. A few moments later, Tarry was by her side. "A last little drink together, shall we?" He signalled Tubbs with his crop. The butler came over with the stirrup-cup. "To your great happiness, Tarry." She fairly forced the words out. "Oh, tomorrow at the wedding breakfast is soon enough for that! Forget it for the moment. Let's make another little toast." Lady Caren's mount was restless, and curvetted close behind them, but on the soft lawn his hoofs were soundless. "Let's drink," said Tarry. "To the memory of that wonderful week we had together in town." And he leaned from the saddle towards Moira. "I'd rather forget it—now." The words came low and clear. Lady Caren backed her mount sharply away from them, and neither was ever to know that she had heard—and misinterpreted. The Master of the Hunt blew on his horn. They were off to that mad, musical too. A brave showing. Not thinking of anything but the chase! The air was like gulps of nectar. On! On! Fences and ditches! Up and down! This way and that. Madly exhilarating at first, but Moira—out of the saddle, for the past fifteen months—after a couple of hours felt a sense of fatigue. Perhaps not so much physical as spiritual. She wanted peace. To be alone for a little. She wheeled her mount off at a tangent. Away to the right, in a hollow, lay a copse through which a little stream purled. It was there that she had first met Tarry—at that picnic nearly three years ago, when he had told her, under the beech tree, that she was pretty. She tied the reins to a low branch of that same tree that was leafless now, and knew there was winter, not spring, in her own heart. Yet the sun shone. She was hot and thirsty. She went down to the stream and, flinging off gloves and hat and lying face down on the mossy edge, drank refreshingly. Ah! That was better! She sat up, wiping the water from her face. She took out a powder-puff from a little folder that had a mirror in one side, and a little comb and lipstick, and repaired the ravages of the ride. Hands clasped behind her head, she lay back on the mossy bank, her slender limbs extended. Peace! But no peace in her heart. How could she go through to tomorrow? It was like doom. Sounds of hoofs on flint nearby. A crackle of branches. A horseman approaching. She sat up quickly. "Tarry!" He flung himself from the saddle, the reins over his wrist. "You scared me! I sure thought you were heading for the Devil's Leap!" "The Devil's Leap? It's near here, is it?" She remembered it now. The stream curved and widened about two hundred yards behind the knoll that rose sharply in back of them. There was a flat plateau above, and then a high stone fence, and ten feet down there were boulders in the water, and rough stones

Maria Carewe met handsome, well-mannered Tarleton Griggs during the era of prohibition, jazz and the "Black Bottom." The son of a rich man, Tarry lived recklessly only for today. It was that spirit which Maria loved. During Christmas vacation from boarding school, Maria stayed at a modest hotel, in New York, with her father who was doing research work for the Museum of Natural History. To be near her, Tarry just moved from his Madison, Connecticut, home into his father's New York apartment, while the latter was out of town, even though he knew the old man would raise the devil. Then followed a merry round of the night clubs and theaters. For Maria, her last night of freedom was blighted by the news that Tarry was leaving for Palm Beach at his father's suggestion. Tarry's common gossip that he was a common gambler, and that he was, socially ambitious Joseph Griggs would welcome a match between her and his son. That summer, Tarry did not go back to Madison. Instead he toured Europe with his father. Maria was devastated. Now and then she'd get a card from him but that was all. However, the society columns told her plenty. There she saw pictures of Tarry and Lady Carewe at a fashionable spot or another. Maria did not see Tarry again until Christmas and then just once, on skating. A year later, Griggs, gives a party to celebrate Tarry's coming of age. Maria is in attendance and Tarry showers her with attention, ignoring Lady Carewe. It is a shock, therefore, when at supper Mr. Griggs announces his son's engagement to Lady Carewe.

CHAPTER IV

Maria wanted to put worlds between herself and Tarry now. One didn't die of a broken heart, these days—or fold one's love away to lavender, as Aunt Melinda thoughtless would have expressed it. It angered Maria to see the concern in Aunt Melinda's eyes as they followed her constantly. "You don't eat enough, darling! You're far too thin!" Did the older woman suspect? "I crammed too hard over those nasty finals at school." Auntie, in her old-fashionedness, was all against mental fatigue for women. "I can't think why you want to get—to have a career! You're so pretty, Maria! You'll be getting married. Till then, why don't you stay home with your father and me, and enjoy yourself?" "Our conceptions of enjoyment are probably quite different. I want to be something, I want to achieve." "You will. There's surely no greater achievement for a woman than a home of her own, and a husband, and babies," said Aunt Melinda with a sigh for her own feminine failure. With Tarry's forthcoming marriage in her mind, Maria was stabbed. Deepening the wound unthinkingly, auntie proceeded: "I always thought that young Griggs had a fancy for you, darling!" "Nonsense! We've just been good friends off and on." When a school friend invited her to Cape Cod for August, Maria jumped at it.

CHAPIN'S MILLINERY

375 E. STATE ST.

She met a young couple from Boston there, who had two tiny girls. The babies took a fancy to Maria, as did the parents, and when they found out that Maria wanted a job away from home, they asked her to come and spend the winter with them, teach the babies, and they would see to it that she had enough free time to attend certain university classes. If it weren't for the ache about Tarry, she would have been happy in Boston, that fall. As it was, she did achieve a kind of tranquility. Christmas drew near. "Surely you'll at least spend these holidays with your father and me," Aunt Melinda plaintively wrote her. So, in bitter-sweet longing, three days before Christmas Maria went home to learn that Tarry would be married to his Lady Carewe in the little church that lay close to the gates of his home, on the world's greatest anniversary. They were all invited. Aunt Melinda had already got herself a new dress. On the morning of the day before Christmas, there was to be a meet of the hounds at Tourney park, and a Hunt Breakfast. Tarry himself phoned Maria to be sure to appear. He sounded less exuberant, more serious, as befitted a young man about to join the ranks of beneficiaries. Maria promised she would come. The splendid mansion, that sunny morning, looked like the backdrop to an exquisite motion picture scene. The red coats of the horsemen. Handsome women on sleek thoroughbreds. Hounds straining at the leash. Uniformed servants with the stirrup-cup. A kaleidoscope of color splashing against the velvet green lawns. In her severely tailored habit and topper—she didn't ride astride—and with unwonted rosininess of her cheeks, Lady Carewe was at her best. Everyone rode up to speak to her, to congratulate her. It was a sort of rehearsal of tomorrow! For years afterwards, that scene was to be imprinted on Maria's brain. She rode up to Lady Carewe herself, held out her hand, and said: "I hope you'll be awfully happy. I know you'll be awfully happy." "You're sure?" The bride-to-be looked wistfully at the younger, prettier girl. "It's rather generous of you to say that, isn't it?" Maria flushed hotly. "Why shouldn't I say it?" "Oh, nothing. You've known him so much longer than I have. That's all I mean." They were interrupted by others, then, and Maria was glad of it. A few moments later, Tarry was by her side. "A last little drink together, shall we?" He signalled Tubbs with his crop. The butler came over with the stirrup-cup. "To your great happiness, Tarry." She fairly forced the words out. "Oh, tomorrow at the wedding breakfast is soon enough for that! Forget it for the moment. Let's make another little toast." Lady Carewe's mount was restless, and curvetted close behind them, but on the soft lawn his hoofs were soundless. "Let's drink," said Tarry, "to the memory of that wonderful week we had together in town." And he leaned from the saddle towards Maria. "I'd rather forget it—now." The words came low and clear. Lady Carewe backed her mount sharply away from them, and neither was ever to know that she had heard—and misinterpreted. The Master of the Hunt blew on his horn. They were off to that mad, musical toot. A brave showing. Not thinking of anything but the chase! The air was like gulps of nectar. On! On! Fences and ditches! Up and down! This way and that. Madly exhilarating at first, but Maria—out of the saddle for the past fifteen months—after a couple of hours felt a sense of fatigue. Perhaps not so much physical as spiritual. She wanted peace. To be alone for a little. She wheeled her mount off at a tangent. Away to the right, in a hollow, lay a copse through which a little stream purled. It was there that she had first met Tarry—at that picnic nearly three years ago, when he had told her, under the beech tree, that she was pretty. She tied the reins to a low branch of that same tree that was leafless now, and knew there was winter, not spring, in her own heart. Yet the sun shone. She was hot and thirsty. She went down to the stream and, flinging off gloves and hat and lying face down on the mossy edge, drank refreshingly. Ah! That was better! She sat up, wiping the water from her face. She took out a powder-puff from a little folder that had a mirror in one side, and a little comb and lipstick, and repaired the ravages of the ride. Hands clasped behind her head, she lay back on the mossy bank, her slender limbs extended. Peace! But no peace in her heart. How could she go through with tomorrow? It was like doom. Sounds of hoofs on flint nearby. A crackle of branches. A horseman approaching. She sat up quickly. "Tarry!" "Moira!" He flung himself from the saddle, the reins over his wrist. "You scared me! I sure thought you were heading for the Devil's Leap!" "The Devil's Leap? It's near here, is it?" She remembered it now. The stream curved and widened about two hundred yards behind the knoll that rose sharply in back of them. There was a flat plateau above, and then a high stone fence, and ten feet down there were boulders in the water, and rough stones

Without Colonic—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. At all drug stores—10c and 25c.

Coast Observers Favor Tennessee In Rose Bowl Contest

SCOUTS REPORT VOLS AS TOUGH FOE FOR U. S. C.

Think Tennessee Should Beat Southern Cal In Rose Bowl

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—Southern California scouts who watched Tennessee play its last two games have made their reports, and the verdict, as Southern California announces it, is that the Volunteers should whip the men of Troy in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, January 1.

George Levison, former Northwestern university quarterback who has been scouting Notre Dame for the Trojans, watched Tennessee clinch the Rose Bowl bid last week by defeating Auburn, 7-0. His charts, diagrams and comments are under scrutiny by Head Coach Howard Jones and his assistants.

Said Levison in his report: "Tennessee is a big team with speed, deception and lots of durability. They are not unlike Notre Dame in that Coach Bob Neyland uses a system which is in part Notre Dame and part the same single wingback, to the right or the left, that Southern California depends upon."

"The reason for the current success of Tennessee, as well as in 1938, when they also were unbeaten, is the great speed of a big line, topped by the work of Ed Molinski and Bob Suffridge. The backs work from behind a balanced line that generates immense drive and is very efficient in its blocking and charging."

The worst of it, as the Trojan staff sees things, is that there doesn't seem to be any way of stopping the southerners.

SEBRING TOPS GOSHEN QUINT

Damascus Team Rallies In Second Half, But Drops Decision

DAMASCUS, Dec. 13.—Piling up a six-point lead in the first quarter, the Sebring Bulldogs went on to win over Goshen High school basketball team, 34-29, at Sebring last night.

Goshen made a strong rally in the second half after trailing 17-7 at the intermission. Kaufman and Hundt paced Sebring scoring with nine and seven points, respectively. Hoyt led Goshen with nine points.

The reserve game saw Sebring sub nose out Goshen reserves, 30 to 23.

Goshen will meet Leetonia at home Friday night.

SCOUTS REPORT VOLS AS TOUGH FOE FOR U. S. C.

Think Tennessee Should Beat Southern Cal In Rose Bowl

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—Southern California scouts who watched Tennessee play its last two games have made their reports, and the verdict, as Southern California announces it, is that the Volunteers should whip the men of Troy in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, January 1.

George Levison, former Northwestern university quarterback who has been scouting Notre Dame for the Trojans, watched Tennessee clinch the Rose Bowl bid last week by defeating Auburn, 7-0. His charts, diagrams and comments are under scrutiny by Head Coach Howard Jones and his assistants.

Said Levison in his report: "Tennessee is a big team with speed, deception and lots of durability. They are not unlike Notre Dame in that Coach Bob Neyland uses a system which is in part Notre Dame and part the same single wingback, to the right or left, that Southern California depends upon."

"The reason for the current success of Tennessee, as well as in 1938, when they also were unbeaten, is the great speed of a big line, topped by the work of Ed Molinski and Bob Suftridge. The backs work from behind a balanced line that generates immense drive and is very efficient in its blocking and charging."

The worst of it, as the Trojan staff sees things, is that there doesn't seem to be any way of stopping the southerners.

DAMASCUS, Dec. 13.—Piling up a six-point lead in the first quarter, the Sebring Bulldogs went on to win over Goshen High school's basketball team, 34-29, at Sebring last night.

Goshen made a strong rally in the second half after trailing 17-7 at the intermission. Cauffman and Hundt paced Sebring scoring with nine and seven points, respectively. Hoyt led Goshen with nine points.

The reserve game saw Sebring subs nose out Goshen reserves, 30 to 28.

Goshen will meet Leontonia at home Friday night.

Experts Rate Baseball Champions First In Yearly Poll

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The boys always said to put the news at the top of the story, so this first paragraph is hardly the place to tell you the country's sports experts picked the New York Yankees of baseball the No. 1 team of all 1939 sports.

Rather, it's the spot to explain that the experts balloting in the ninth annual Associated Press poll had a tough time deciding whether Iowa's comebacking football Hawkeyes, or the undefeated teams of Southern California, Tennessee and Cornell, rated the No. 2 slot. They finally gave it to Iowa, with 37½ points to 34 for the Pacific Coast conference champions, 33 for the other half of the Rose Bowl, Tennessee, and 26 for Cornell.

Yet the combined vote for these four gridiron powers was only slightly more than half the total the Yankees rolled up in winning recognition as "outstanding team of the year, amateur or professional," for the fourth straight year, just as easily as they sky-rocketed to their fourth straight world championship with a woeful wallowing of the Cincinnati Reds in October.

Solid Support
Sixty-one of the 79 experts who cast ballots from all parts of the country picked the Yankees as undisputed No. 1 team. Another split his ticket between the Yankees and the Hawkeyes. Thirteen others put the Yanks in second place. There were only four who didn't mention them.

As a sport, football led all the rest, with nine college and professional teams being nominated. The Texas Aggies, heading for the Sugar Bowl, were sixth on the list with 18 points.

Basketball drew six nominees, headed by the University of Oregon's champions in seventh place with 12 points. Baseball had four on the list and crew, three. Southern California was mentioned twice, in track as well as football.

The voting:
New York Yankees, baseball, 21½; U. of Iowa, football, 37½; U. of Southern California, football, 34; U. of Tennessee, football, 33; Cornell U., football, 26; Texas A. & M., football, 18; U. of Oregon, basketball, 12; Cincinnati Reds, baseball, 9; Australian Davis cup, tennis, 9; Boston Bruins, hockey, 8; U. of Southern California, track, 7; Green Bay Packers, pro football, 7; New York Giants, pro football, 7; Long Island U., basketball, 6; Denver Nuggets, basketball, 5; Harvard, crew, 5; Ohio State U., basketball, 4; U. of California, crew, 4.

IRWIN ASSAILS POWER POLITICS

Condemns Allies' Policies As Well As That of Their Foes

Stimson, our secretary of state, by trans-Atlantic calls, official notes to the British government and messages to the prime minister was declaring the United States ready to assist in any action, assume a seat on the council of the League of Nations, if necessary, to stop Japan.

Ignore U. S. Offers
Sir John Simon and the British government chose to ignore the offers of the United States because, with Japan engaged in northern China and Manchukuo, Great Britain had nothing to fear from Japan economically or militarily, in China centers of trade, industries and British interests.

"The cost of such a realistic attitude in politics was the death of the League of Nations, which was a minor matter to Britain," they followed in rapid succession the conquest of Ethiopia, occupation of the Rhineland, eventual occupation of Austria. Britain and France explained they did not help Austria maintain her independence because they were not committed in central Europe, yet at that time they were committed, by treaty, to the extent of using the force of arms to help Austria. They chose to overlook that obligation, showing that the Henderson policy of allowing Hitler a free rein in the east was beginning to work.

At that time Britain kept up a "lip service to collective security" for the benefit of the public, among other things, invoking sanctions against Italy in the conquest of Ethiopia, when Britain could have crushed Italy in 30 days had there been any real desire to do so. With the occupation of Austria, Hitler won his first fort. Next on his list was Czechoslovakia. "Hitler could no more expand in southeastern Europe without taking Czechoslovakia than an invading army in hostile territory could go around a fortress and leave it undereached in its rear," Irwin declared.

Seek Settlement
When Hitler's Czechoslovakia campaign was started, Britain and France began efforts at settlement of the crisis. Czechoslovakia tried to stall for time to find a way to save her life. While Britain made public efforts at settlement for the little republic, she was entering into negotiations with people inside Germany, industrial leaders, army powers and members of the conservative parties.

Those Germans promised that, in return for loans to Germany and the opening of large credits to her by England, enabling Germany to reestablish herself as a normal economic nation and put her back on her feet, they would get rid of

gram at 8 p. m. Thursday at the schoolhouse. All members are asked to bring gifts for a Christmas box.

Building Permit
R. H. Sponseller obtained a building permit from the city today to erect a $300 garage on W. School st.

Recent Births
Mr. and Mrs. William Holk of 521 Woodland ave., are parents of a son born early this morning in Salem City hospital.

Hitler in 24 hours and get rid of him without plunging the nation into chaos. But Britain refused (August, 1938) and went ahead with the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia.

On Sept. 21 in Eduard Benes' castle in Prague, "not only the fate of Czechoslovakia, but the fate of the western world, was decided." The conference between Benes, president of Czechoslovakia, Britain's Sir Basil Newton and France's Decriux, ending in Czechoslovakia's acceptance at the insistence of the other two nations, of Hitler's "peace" terms "marked not the end, only the beginning."

That afternoon Benes received from Russia definite promise of aid, military and economic, but the issue had been decided by the allies whose representatives had promised that if Czechoslovakia went to war, she would go alone and the moral, military and material assistance of Great Britain and France would go to Germany.

Hears Benes' Story
The dramatic story of those hours before the death of the little nation of Czechoslovakia were told to Irwin by Former President Benes, who promises himself and his people that Britain shall one day yet honor the treaty she made guaranteeing the frontiers of the small nation, guarantees which she later denied existed.

Perhaps Britain's threat to aid Germany if Czechoslovakia insisted on resistance was a bluff. Both Britain and France would have had to institute virtual dictatorships at home to give open aid to Germany at that time. "But if it was a bluff, Czechoslovakia and Benes were in no position to call it. As far as they were concerned it was and remains a reality."

The Munich treaty was concluded in 72 hours and Czechoslovakia's guaranteed frontiers crumbled while Benes held a treaty which France and England dared not mention.

When Germany took Memel, after Czechoslovakia, and Italy took Albania, the fact that Hitler was not quite so reliable as Britain and France had thought, became faintly discernible. Hitler's ambition led him to forsake the rules of the game, despite warnings from England and France who feared their people might learn that they had bargained with Hitler, repudiated their given word, at the expense of not only Czechoslovakia but other small nations as well.

Begin to Learn Truth
About the time the people of France and Great Britain began to realize what appeasement meant to them personally, they began to find out where Czechoslovakia was. Their attitude forced Chamberlain and Daladier to take a firm stand with Hitler, who was increasing his demands.

Great Britain suddenly began giving open guarantees, to Yugoslavia, Poland, Roumania, Turkey and Greece, promising aid against aggression and entered into negotiations with her arch-enemy, Russia. That treaty-making was expedited by the conclusion of a trade pact by Russia and Germany, followed by a military alliance between the two nations.

Hitler was confident that his alliance with his own hated enemy would shock a startled world into acquiescence to his demands. His system of press propaganda, working up to a crescendo of atrocities against German minorities, violence against leaders of victim governments, and the crushing of the nations, had always worked before.

Now Britain and France and Poland talked back. Hitler had spoiled his own game. So he came to an understanding with Communistic Russia, making rather reckless concessions to her. Irwin pointed out that the German-Russo pact probably includes a plan for the division of Poland, the reestablishment of Russia on the Baltic and a third event, which he believes will occur next spring, a division in the Balkans.

IRWIN ASSAILS POWER POLITICS

Stimson, our secretary of state, by transatlantic calls, official notes to the British government and messages to the prime minister was declaring the United States was ready to assist in any action, assume a seat on the council of the League of Nations, if necessary, to stop Japan.

Ignore U. S. Offers

Sir John Simon and the British government chose to ignore the offers of the United States because, with Japan engaged in northern China and Manchukuo, Great Britain had nothing to fear from Japan economically or militarily, in China centers of trade, industries and British interests.

"The cost of such a realistic attitude in politics was the death of the League of Nations, which was a minor matter to Britain." There followed in rapid succession the conquest of Ethiopia, occupation of the Rhineland, eventual occupation of Austria. Britain and France explained they did not help Austria maintain her independence because they were not committed in central Europe, yet at that time they were committed, by treaty, to the extent of using the force of arms to help Austria. They chose to overlook that obligation, showing that the Henderson policy of allowing Hitler a free rein in the east was beginning to work.

At that time Britain kept up a "lip service to collective security" for the benefit of the public, among other things, invoking sanctions against Italy in the conquest of Ethiopia, when Britain could have crushed Italy in 30 days had there been any real desire to do so.

With the occupation of Austria, Hitler won his first fort. Next on his list was Czechoslovakia. "Hitler could no more expand in southeastern Europe without taking Czechoslovakia, than an invading army in hostile territory could go around a fortress and leave it unreduced in its rear," Irwin declared.

Seek Settlement

When Hitler's Czechoslovakian campaign was started, Britain and France began efforts at settlement of the crisis. Czechoslovakia tried to stall for time to find a way to save her life. While Britain made public efforts at settlement for the little republic, she was entering into negotiations with people inside Germany, industrial leaders, army powers and members of the conservative parties.

Those Germans promised that, in return for loans to Germany and the opening of large credits to her by England, enabling Germany to reestablish herself as a normal economic nation and put her back on her feet, they would get rid of

gram at 8 p. m. Thursday at the schoolhouse. All members are asked to bring gifts for a Christmas box.

Building Permit

R. H. Sponseller obtained a building permit from the city today to erect a $300 garage on W. School st.

Recent Births

Mr. and Mrs. William Holk of 521 Woodland ave., are parents of a son born early this morning in Salem City hospital.

Hitler in 24 hours and get rid of him without plunging the nation into chaos. But Britain refused (August, 1938) and went ahead with the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia.

On Sept. 21 in Edward Benes' castle in Prague, "not only the fate of Czechoslovakia, but the fate of the western world, was decided." The conference between Benes, president of Czechoslovakia, Britain's Sir Basil Newton and France's Decroix, ending in Czechoslovakia's acceptance at the insistence of the other two nations, of Hitler's "peace" terms "marked not the end, only the beginning."

That afternoon Benes received from Russia definite promise of aid, military and economic, but the issue had been decided by the allies whose representatives had promised that if Czechoslovakia went to war, she would go alone and the moral, military and material assistance of Great Britain and France would go to Germany.

Hears Benes' Story

The dramatic story of those hours before the death of the little nation of Czechoslovakia were told to Irwin by former President Benes, who promises himself and his people that Britain shall one day yet honor the treaty she made guaranteeing the frontiers of the small nation, guarantees which she later denied existed.

Perhaps Britain's threat to aid Germany if Czechoslovakia insisted on resistance was a bluff. Both Britain and France would have had to institute virtual dictatorships at home to give open aid to Germany at that time. "But if it was a bluff, Czechoslovakia and Benes were in no position to call it. As far as they were concerned it was and remains a reality."

The Munich treaty was concluded in 72 hours and Czechoslovakia's guaranteed frontiers crumbled while Benes held a treaty which France and England dared not mention. When Germany took Menel, after Czechoslovakia, and Italy took Albania, the fact that Hitler was not quite so reliable as Britain and France had thought, became faintly discernible. Hitler's ambition led him to forsake the rules of the game, despite warnings from England and France who feared they had bargained with Hitler, repudiated their given word, at the expense of not only Czechoslovakia but other small nations as well.

Begin to Learn Truth

About the time the people of France and Great Britain began to realize what appeasement meant to them personally, they began to find out where Czechoslovakia was. Their attitude forced Chamberlain and Daladier to take a firm stand with Hitler, who was increasing his demands.

Great Britain suddenly began giving open guarantees, to Yugoslavia, Poland, Roumania, Turkey and Greece, promising aid against aggression and entered into negotiations with her arch-enemy, Russia. That treaty-making was expedited with the conclusion of a trade pact by Russia and Germany, followed by a military alliance between the two nations.

Hitler was confident that his alliance with his own hated enemy would shock a startled world into acquiescence to his demands. His system of press propaganda, working up to a crescendo of atrocities against German minorities, violence against leaders of victim governments, and the crushing of the nations, had always worked before.

Now Britain and France and Poland talked back. Hitler had spoiled his own game. So he came to an understanding with Communist Russia, making rather reckless concessions to her. Irwin pointed out that the German-Russo pact probably includes a plan for the division of Poland, the reestablishment of Russia on the Baltic and a third event, which he believes will occur next spring, a division in the Balkans.
